The aim of this Seminar is to focus on the importance of a Strategic approach to Water Resources. Water is the “Source of Life” and living being cannot survive without it.

More, all human activities are strictly related to Water Resources, either directly or indirectly.

For this reason, it is of paramount importance investigate and analyze its impact on our daily life. Amid others, 2 main issues play a strategic role when dealing with Water: Water-Energy Nexus & Water Security-Food Security Nexus. Our contemporary societies, under any latitude, are Energy-Intensive and the role of Water is so often underestimate. The same is valid for the even more important aspect of the inner relation existing amid Food and Water. Despite useful Indicators already exist and represent a valid tool to carefully approach the vast theme of Water Resources, many are those who still undervalue the basic need to have access to good quality Water in any field. Recent droughts all around Europe, alarmed ruling and leading class worried by the tremendous combined effect of Climate Changes and Water Scarcity, but current reactions shows that we are still far from adopting adequate solutions to a problem that is going to be always more serious in the next future. Students will benefit of an innovative Strategic Approach to this epochal challenge by acquiring an efficacious set of analytical abilities, made available by Professor Alessandro Leto, one of the most important Scholar in the field of Water Studies at the international level.

This Webinar is part of Workshops organized by STRATEGOS and MIPET in Genoa University and connected with Intelligence Webinars and Pandemics Webinars.
